SOME CHANGES AT AN OLD DYE WORKS. CARRYING AN ELECTION WITH A HIGH HAND-RE-

STRAINED BY AN INJUNCTION. The dyeing establishment of Barrett, Nephews & Co. in herry Lane, Port Richmond, Staten Island, was estabtished in 1851 and has since been in successful operation. Nathan Munday, who was lately sent to the Middletown Insane Asylum, is, by the will of his grandfather, Colonel Nathan Barrett, a large stockholder in the company. Montay last was the day for holding the annual meeting. Major Barrett was nominated as chairman. Rea Barnes, of Four Courners, claimed that the election of a chairman should be viva voce, he voting by proxy for Mrs. Lora Mundy. On a motion of his brother he de-Barnes's office, was elected secretary. Two tellers were appointed. S. S. Ransom, counsellor for the corporation, protested in behalf of Mr. Barrett and other stockholders, that the proceedings were illegal. Mr. Barnes, R. Chris that the proceedings were illegal. Mr. Barnes, R. Christopher and T. D. Leslie then proceeded to vote on 402 shares for these trustees: Rea Barnes, Everett Barnes, T. J. Sheehan, T. A. McSorley, W. M. Smith. Mr. Ransom protessed that the votes were lilegal, as none of the parties except McSorley were stockholders. Mrs. Anna E. Barrett then handed the tellers a ballot for 58s shares, having the names of several persons for trustees. The tellers refused to receive the ballot.

The shares voted on the Barrett ticket, with the rejected shares, would have made a majority vote. After the counting of the ballots, Rea Barnes then declared himself president, his brother Everett treasurer and the clerk as secretary, and appointed an executive committee to take charge. Barnes was afterward served with an injunction restraining him from interfering in any manner with the works or management of the corporation. On Saturday the injunction will be argued.

At St. Vincent's Hospital the house surgeon said yesterday that he had sent an ambulance and surgeon for Buckley on a call from the Mercer Street Police Station. The ambulance had returned without the patient, the surgeon reporting that the man was suffering from discuses that could be better treated at Believue, and that Mrs. Buckley, after the facts had been explained to her, concurred in the suggestion that the proper place for her husband was the other hospital. At Bellevue Hospital the house surgeon said that on police call the sick wagon was sent for Buckley, but did not bring him to the hospital because he was asleep when the wagor reached his home and his wife refused to have him disturbed at that time.

These statements were corroborated at Buckler's home.

sublished in THE TRIRUNE on Christmas Day, has re suited in bringing him friends who have given financial aid to him and his family. According to the story as published, Gunn was a native of Baligali, Thurse, Scotland. He settled in Toronto, Canada, eighteen years ago, becoming a journeyman painter. He moved to Hamilton where he was unfortunate, a mortgage on his property was foreclosed and his family, consisting of a wife and child and himself, was left stranded. Gunn was a member in good standing of Dixon Lodge, No. 237, A. O. U. W., of Hamilton. Relying in part on this he came to this city. He got work here, but was injured by a fall from a horse-car and had to go to the hospital. On getting out he went to New London, worked there a while and then returned here. He again secured employment, but was taken sick and Christmas found him in Bellevue Hospital. His family, living at No. 328 West Forty-ninth-st. was in a destitute condition. As soon as the account of Gunn's misfortunes was published in THE TRIBUNE, Vanderbilt and Scotla Lodges, A. O. U. W., took the matter in hand, supplied the family with necessaries and give attention to the unfortunate man. Commissioner of Charitles and Correction Brennan has taken an interest in the case. A member of Vandgridit Lodge said yesterday that the family was now comfortably provided for.

TOBOGGANERS AGAIN IN HIGH GLEE. The Fleetwood toboggan slides presented a lively scene yesterday afternoon and last night. The slides are in good condition, but a little snow would make the sport more realistic. Tobogganing was also rethe sport more reassite. Tobogganing was also re-sumed at the Polo Grounds yesterday. The slides were like glass in smoothness and were well patron-ized. Canvas awnings have been erected which will preserve the slides from both rain and sum. A carnival will be held on Monday if weather permits.

Inspector Byrnes and ex-Alderman Waite were at the Dis-trict-Attorney's office yesterday and had interviews with Mr Fellows and Assistant District Attorney Semple. Inspector Byrnes and ex-Alderman Waite had been together at Police Headquarters on Taesday evening. The new trial of Jacob Shars was the topic of some of the conversation, but Mr. Pellows would say nothing as to his plans. The Squire case is set down for the early part of February, but the Sharp case will probably be taken up soon after the Squire case is de

THE STOLEN RAILWAY BONDS. THEY KEEP BOBBING UP IN VARIOUS PLACES, BUT

AFFORD NO TRACE OF THE THIEF. Police Inspector Byrnes was informed a few days ago that a number of Grand Trunk Rallway bonds, which had been stolen from the First National Bank of Albany, had been sold in Wall-st. The owner of the bonds was said to be a wealthy retired merchant of Albany, who did not wish to have his name published in connection with the robbery. He had kept the bonds, valued at $22,000, in a tin box which was placed for safe keeping in the vanit of the bank in Albany. Upon visiting the bank recently he opened his box and missed the bonds. It could not be ascertained at the time how the bonds were abstracted from the box, as the box had not been broken open and the owner was the only person who was believed to have had a key to it. The robbery was kept a secret while the bank officials were making an investigation. It was plain that some person who had access to the bank's vault, and who knew of the existence of the bonds, must have procured a false key to the box. good value at $1.25.

Meanwhile it was ascertained that some of the stolen bonds had been sent to the Bank of Montreal through the office of a New-York broker. The bonds in Montreal were valued at $0,000. As payment on the bonds had been stopped, the customer of the liank of Montreal who had purchased the bonds in good faith made inquiries why he could not collect on his coupons. Inspector hyrnes ascertained that several brokers in this city had handled some of the stolen bonds in good faith, being unaware that the bonds had been stolen. The bonds which had been sent to Montreal had been received by a Wall-st. broker from a banker in Chicago. All the stolen bonds which had been bought and sold in New-York had been received through banking houses in other cities, it was said.

Yesterday five of the stolen bonds were received by the Central National Fank in this city, from the liaiston Hank of Boston. Inspector Byrnes said that he had traced the stolen bonds to persons outside the city and had sent information to the bank officials at Albany. The thief had not been discovered, he said, and it was certain that he would not be looked for in this city. The stolen bonds had been found in the possession of banks or brokers who purchased them in good faith and it would be necessary to trace the sales back to the thief. That work will have to be done outside of New-York. through the office of a New-York broker. The bonds
